The Mystery of King Tutankhamun

The sands of Egypt hid a secret world long before the pyramids. A man named Howard Carter wanted to find the tomb of a pharaoh of Egypt named Tutankhamun. Carter spent many years looking for it. But what he was about to get up for found it.

Tutankhamun lived during the 18th dynasty in Egypt. He lived around 1332 B.C. He was a young pharaoh who died at a young age. He had a tomb hidden in a valley in Egypt. When Carter found it, he first pushed through a hole punched through the tomb's wall. Carter asked, "Can you see anything?" Carter said, "Yes, wonderful things."

The treasures inside the boy king's tomb were described as "imagination." His chest held new items like a cart to be pulled by oxen. Also inside the tomb were traps, wooden furniture, musical instruments, and board games. There was a small shop the king had made where he was a merchant. The tomb held every item one needed to live, including clothes, food, and even a dog.
