Ndeye was born and raised in Senegal, a country in West Africa. She grew up in a close-knit family, and she has always loved to learn about new cultures. When she was 18 years old, Ndeye left Senegal to study in the United States. She was nervous at first, but she quickly made friends with people from all over the world. Ndeye's experiences in the United States opened her eyes to the possibilities of travel and adventure. After graduating from college, Ndeye returned to Senegal. She worked for a few years, but she never forgot her dream of traveling the world. In 2010, Ndeye quit her job and bought a one-way ticket to Thailand. She has been traveling ever since.

Ndeye has traveled to over 50 countries on five continents. She has slept in hostels, guesthouses, and even in the homes of strangers. She has eaten street food, learned new languages, and made friends from all over the world. Ndeye's travels have taught her a lot about the world and about herself. She has learned that the world is a beautiful place, and that there are good people everywhere. She has also learned that it is possible to step outside of your comfort zone and have amazing experiences.

Ndeye's story is an inspiration to anyone who loves to travel and adventure. Make New Friends and Keep the Old is a must-read for anyone who wants to learn more about the world and about themselves.
