In her new book, "Searching for Home: Stories of Indians Living Abroad," author Your Name explores the experiences of Indians from all walks of life who have made the decision to live in a foreign country. Through a series of intimate and revealing interviews, she tells the stories of people who have left behind their families, friends, and culture in search of a better life.

The stories in "Searching for Home" are as diverse as the people who tell them. Some of the people interviewed have found success and happiness in their new countries, while others have struggled to adjust to a new culture and way of life. Some have chosen to assimilate into their new surroundings, while others have made a conscious effort to maintain their Indian identity.

Despite their differences, the people interviewed in "Searching for Home" all share a common desire to find a place where they can feel at home. Whether they have been abroad for a few months or for many years, they all continue to search for a place where they can feel a sense of belonging.

"Searching for Home" is a moving and insightful book that sheds light on the complex experiences of Indians living abroad. It is a book that will resonate with anyone who has ever left their home country in search of a better life.
