But beyond the mystery surrounding his identity, the Unknown Soldier's story is intertwined with the heroic deeds of his fellow soldiers.

The Most Decorated Heroes of WWI

Among the ranks of America's Unknown Soldier's comrades were some of the most decorated heroes of the war. Soldiers like:

- Alvin York: A Tennessee farmer who single-handedly captured an entire battalion of German soldiers, earning him the Medal of Honor and the nickname "The Fighting Quaker."
- Sergeant York: A Medal of Honor recipient who personally killed 25 enemy soldiers and captured 132 more in a single battle.
- Harry Butner: The first American to be awarded the Medal of Honor in World War I, for his bravery in the Battle of Cantigny.
- Henry Johnson: An African American soldier who fought off a group of German soldiers with only a knife, earning him the Croix de Guerre with Palm.
- Charles Whittlesey: The commander of the "Lost Battalion," a unit that was surrounded by the enemy for five days, earning him the Medal of Honor.

These heroes and countless others fought with unwavering courage and determination in the face of unimaginable horrors. Their stories deserve to be known and celebrated, and 'The Untold Story' brings them to life in vivid detail.
